Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-8,10,14-18,20-29,32,33 and 35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Ryan, et al.-2003/0191495 A1.

Ryan discloses a surgical fastener having two end anchor portions and a central connecting portion. The anchors are formed of a polymeric material, and the connector portion is formed of a polymer material more elastic than the anchors. The materials are bioabsorbable and induce tissue ingrowth. The device is expandable due to the material, compression or inflation. The device can include glue or drugs. As disclosed in paragraph 42, the tissue anchors can incorporate a roughened tissue-contacting surface, thus they include the claimed "protrusions". See paragraphs 6,8,42-44,48,52-55,64 and 73.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 19,34,36 and 37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ryan, et al.-'495 in view of Ory, et al.-6692506 or Thill, et al.-2003/0028213 A1 and Beer, et al.-2003/0139819.

Ryan discloses the invention as claimed with the exception of the specific anchor materials. Both Ory and Thill disclose at least one of the claimed anchor materials in similar devices. It would have been obvious to have used a bioabsorbable material taught by either Ory or Thill for the anchors of Ryan, as these materials are bioabsorbable, induce tissue ingrowth or attach well to tissue. Ryan also fails to specify that the protrusions include a bioactive substance. However, Beer discloses a septal occluder body made out of a bioabsorbable material with a drug therein. It would have been obvious to have made the anchor portions, including the protrusions, out of a bioabsorbable material with drugs in order to treat a condition or prevent infection or induce growth into the occluder.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 08-13-2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that Ryan fails to disclose the claimed protrusions. This is not persuasive. By definition, a roughened surface has protrusions. A protrusion merely protrudes from another surface or element. Depending on the frame of reference, a planar object with indentations would also have protrusions. The material projecting from the bottom of the depressions would be protrusions. There is nothing in the claims which provides structure which is not found in the prior art references.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
